Getting you grant-ready.

Writing a grant application is never simple. This free guide will help you develop a clear idea on your project's funding needs, and begin gathering the essential information that you'll need for developing strong,clear applications.

Lets take the first step towards securing your next grant'd moment!

Organisation Name:

Name of Project:

Project Description:

What is your project doing and what does it aim to achieve? Where will it be?

Project Need:

What is the problem you're trying to address through this project?

Who will benefit and how?

Think about your client demographics. Also, are there any indirect beneficiaries? How many will this project reach?

Outcomes and how they will be measured:

Immediate and/or future outcomes as a result of your project. What methods will you use to measure these outcomes?

Project budget:

How much can you contribute? What other contributors are there? How much do you need? What are the program costs? Will there be in-kind support?

What resources and supporting materials might you need?

Eg: Confirmation of your TCC and DGR status, case studies, evidence of need, letters of support, evidence of partnerships.

Notes:

Is there any research that needs to be done or information sourced?
